Keith Morgan is the leading authority on Charles Adams Platt (1861-1933), the architect of the Lyme Art Association and one of its founding members.

He is the author of numerous books on Platt and curator of recent major Platt exhibitions.

His slide lecture traces Platt's legacy as one of America's most prominent architects in the first decades of the 20th century, and also his artistic legacy as a landscape designer, etcher, and painter.
